Pre-dawn demolition stalled as owner threatens SUICIDE

MUDA-MCC squad returns empty-handed without razing partially built Shaadi Mahal

Picture shows one of the owners of the partially built Shaadi Mahal in Rajivnagar sitting on top of the roof this morning threatening to commit suicide as demolition squad approached.

Mysuru, Nov.13 (RK&SR)- In a major embarrassment to the city administration, a team of officials from Mysuru Urban Development Authority (MUDA) and Mysuru City Corporation (MCC), who had gone to raze down an alleged illegal construction, along with a demolition squad and Police security this morning, had to return empty-handed.

The squad was forced to return without accomplishing its task following stiff resistance from the owners of the building located on Devanur Tank Road in Rajivnagar II Stage here.

About the incident: Following complaints of unauthorised construction of a building, the officials had gone to demolish the illegal construction in the early hours of today.

They had gone to the spot armed with 10 JCB machines, four gas cutters, tippers and 30 gangmen. Two fire tenders and Udayagiri Police led by Inspector P.P. Santosh too accompanied the demolition team.

But when they were about to start the demolition of the alleged partial construction of a Shaadi Mahal in the 20 guntas of land coming under survey numbers 50/1, 50/10/11/12 of Devanur village, the owners-cum-brothers, Musheer Ahmed and Mohammed Fahid, who rushed to the spot on learning about the demolition, objected to the pre-dawn drive.

As per Government norms, the owners must get their agricultural land converted to commercial purpose after applying for change of land use. Besides they must also obtain approval from Town Planning authorities for construction of Shaadi Mahal at the said land as per Karnataka Town and Country Planning Act, 1961 after paying the penalty and the stipulated tax to the competent authorities.

But the duo had reportedly violated all these building norms, said the officials. Even as the team was preparing for the demolition, one of the owners Musheer Ahmed climbed up the roof of the illegal structure and threatened to commit suicide if they went ahead with the demolition.

Unsung and Unhonoured

Saying that "when there is no money in one's pocket, everything looks costly" is a gross understatement. The number of families in the land, unable to access cash for purchasing even bare necessities of life, particularly food of whatever nutritional rating and shelter for their members, is beyond anybody's guess. Whatever that number, figuring in public domain through media may be, stated in millions, also seems to be a gross understatement. In this backdrop, the aspirations of the top brass in the Central government as declared at the time of taking over in 2014 to (a) rein in the galloping unemployment, particularly bugging the educated youth (accounting for nearly one-third of land's headcount) and (b) doubling the income of families in farming sector have remained as dreams, providing grist to the critics of administration to berate the government. It doesn't require genius to criticise without contributing ideas and action plan to make the aforementioned dream turn to reality.

The scenario of the country's youth, armed with degrees and diplomas in various branches of science and engineering, consuming their life's years and money of their parents, ending as peddlers of consumer goods being sought online raises the question : Of what avail is their education? The fraction of the educated youth population, emerging with start-ups, is a silver lining amidst the dark clouds of unemployment.

While the enterprise of start-up is beset with hurdles in its path of progress, such as funds for investment, working capital, volatility of market for their products and so on, the number of youth taking up the challenging route to earn a livelihood is only a small fraction of population, leaving the demon of unemployment staring the youth. Long time residents of Mysuru can recollect the now-gone ubiquitous providers of necessities of daily life and many services at their doorsteps at virtually daybreak. Vegetables, flowers, fruits and also fresh milk in an unfailing supply chain marked the daily routine until a few decades ago. Also, taken for granted were the now-extinct specialists in coating brass vessels with tin, cobblers, dressing the grinding stone, sharpeners of cutlery. We are now in the era of roadside enterprises, erupting in the evenings all over the city.

The news that the Central government has turned its attention to the road-bound entrepreneurs for providing "Vitamin M" to the unsung and unhonoured flock for earning a tidy income is to be lauded — better late than never.

EDITOR'S BOTTOMLINE

So you are at the airport and your flight is late and you make friends with a perfect stranger in the waiting area or he is sitting next to you on the aircraft and you spark a chat and for the next few hours you are best buds. You discuss politics, families, jobs, the state of the country and you are on the same wavelength and this is such a super friendship in the sky. Instant, like coffee. Something about being up in the air makes you freely exchange confidences you would never do on terra firma. And you get off the plane together and wait for each other at Immigration and you exchange phone numbers and addresses and swear eternal friendship and threaten to stay in touch forever and a day. And now you are at the baggage carousel marvelling at what a pleasure this chance meeting was when your bag trundles down the belt and his hasn't come. Like those dominos that fall upon each other, your new found affection also begins to collapse and you hear yourself say, you want me to wait for your bag? And he says, no, no, you go and relieved of residual guilt, you do just that. With much salutations you go. Thirty minutes later he has faded like a painting left in the rain, his name a contrail in the sky getting fuzzier by the second. His calling card will be consigned to that heap with the rubber band around it in the corner of the drawer, never to be retrieved. — Bikram Vohra in The Times of India.

Police lose 540 kg of cannabis to addicted rats

Buenos Aires: Police officials in Pilar, Argentina's Buenos Aires province, were recently questioned about the disappearance of 540 kg of marijuana from the evidence room and the best explanation they came up with was that addicted rats ate it all.

After checking everything in the evidence room, it was reported that of the 6,000 kg of marijuana mentioned in Specia's paper of transfer, 540 kg were missing. Judge Adrián González Charvay opened an investigation and cited Commissioner Javier Specia and three of his subordinates to testify about the missing drugs. Interestingly, they all offered the same alibi – that the 540 kg of marijuana had all been consumed by rats.

This caterpillar screams to keep predators away

Ottawa: Except for the sound they make while chewing leaves, majority of caterpillars are silent creatures. However, the Nessus Sphinx Hawkmoth Caterpillar is able to produce clicking noises that sounds a lot like static, as a self-defense mechanism to keep predators at bay.

When threatened, it produces a strange sound that resembles a combination of cracking and spitting, by pushing air through a constriction between its two foregut chambers, even though it has no lungs. Recently, a team of researchers at Carleton University, in Ottawa, Canada set out to solve this mystery.

They trapped a wild female moths and raised their eggs in a laboratory. Once the caterpillars were fully grown, researchers surrounded them with powerful microphones and started simulating predatory attacks, by gently pinching them with metal forceps.

Microphones revealed that the sounds were most powerful near the caterpillar's mouth, which they kept open while emitting the static-like noise. That indicated that the caterpillars didn't produce the sound by rubbing their mandibles together, and that it came from inside their bodies.

VOICE OF THE READER

Devaraja Market: Recalling a 1976 incident

Sir,

On reading Sanjay Kini's letter titled "Destination Devaraja Market: A Jewel of Tourism Industry in Mysuru" in SOM dated Nov.5, I was reminded of the following incident.

It was December-end 1976. I was travelling to Bombay by train after completing winter vacation at home via Arsikere - Davanagere - Hubli - Miraj - Pune - Bombay route. The track was meter gauge up to Miraj and from Miraj to Bombay, it was broad gauge.

From Mysore till Arsikere, the compartment was almost empty. The occupancy improved slightly at Arsikere. A European couple entered the compartment and occupied seats in the coach I was in. I don't know if they were husband and wife. There were no other passengers. After a while, all three of us became tired of reading the books and we started talking to each other.

Both of them were from France. They must have been in their early thirties. Both had worked for some time in France and saved some money. They had quit their jobs and come to India to see the country. They would continue as long as they had money in their pockets. I was aghast when I heard this. I asked them how they will manage when they go back since they had quit their previous jobs. They weren't unduly worried. They said they will get other jobs. But to us Indians, quitting a job just to go on jaunts like this was terrifying and unthinkable.

Then I enquired about the places they had visited in India. When I asked about Mysore, the gentleman burst out "beautiful market." I was completely taken by surprise.

If he had said Palace or KRS, I would not have been surprised. Having been born and brought up in this city, I had taken the market for granted. But his remark set me thinking. By then, I had seen several places in India — Bangalore, Mangalore, Udupi, Madras, Hyderabad, Nagpur, Agra, Delhi, Chandigarh, Shimla, Jaipur, Ahmedabad and Goa. I had spent four months at Bombay for my first semester M.Tech in Electrical Engineering at IIT Bombay. It then dawned on me that none of these places had anything comparable to our Devaraja Market. The more I thought about it, the more I became fascinated by it. It required a chance remark by an unknown Frenchman to open my eyes to its beauty and utility.

I feel the views and suggestions by Sanjay Kini need to be taken seriously so that our iconic market continues to serve and fascinate us.

G.D. Harish Gowda's faction wins MCDCC Bank Polls

Mysuru, Nov.13 (SBD&DM)- In a huge setback to incumbent President S. Chandrashekar, the faction supported by JD(S) youth leader G.D. Harish Gowda, son of District Minister G.T. Devegowda, won the MCDCC (Mysuru-Chamarajanagar District Co-operative Central) Bank polls held here yesterday.

The voting for electing 12 out of the 17 Directors of the Bank was held between 9 am and 4 pm at Nanjaraja Bahadur Choultry on Vinoba Road here yesterday, following which the counting of votes was taken up.

Five Directors — G.D. Harish Gowda, B. Basavegowda, Amith Devarahatti, R. Narendra and Y.M. Jayaram — were earlier elected unopposed.

In all, there were 27 candidates in the fray for 12 Directors and 587 members of the Bank were eligible to cast their votes.

After the voting ended at 4 pm, the counting of votes was taken up and the results were declared, with G.D. Harish Gowda-led faction emerging victorious and the rival faction led by the incumbent President S. Chandrashekar losing badly. In fact, S. Chandrashekar himself lost the election. M. Kumar won from Mysuru taluk seat defeating his nearest rival Mellahalli Mahadevaswamy by three votes. While Kumar secured 11 votes, Mahadevaswamy got 8 votes.

G.C. Singegowda was elected (7 votes) from H.D. Kote seat defeating his nearest rival K. Lokesh (5 votes). M.P. Sunil was declared elected (19 votes) from Gundlupet defeating his nearest rival N. Mahadevappa (8 votes).

ZP Member B.N. Sadanand was declared elected (18 votes) from Nanjangud seat defeating his rival B.S. Mahesh (6 votes).

C.N. Ravi was declared elected (20 votes) from Periyapatna by trouncing his rival Puttaraju (2 votes). However, the Chamarajanagar seat result sprung up a surprise with both the candidates B.G. Nagendra Kumar and K.M. Shivashankar ending up getting 10 votes each. As the result was a tie, the victor was chosen from a lottery draw, in which B.G. Nagendra Kumar of G.D. Harish Gowda faction was declared elected. K.G. Mahesh, who bagged 7 votes, was declared elected from Chamarajanagar APMC seat defeating his nearest rival C. Mahesh (2 votes).

The result of Town Co-operative Banks and Housing Co-operative Societies seat was declared tied after both the candidates, MCC Corporator SMB Manju and Dr. M.B. Manjegowda, bagging 12 votes each. Later, Dr. Manjegowda was declared elected from the seat through a lottery draw, much to the disappointment of SBM Manju.

H.J. Nagaprasad was declared elected (20 votes) from Consumer Co-operative Societies and Non-Agricultural Credit Co-operative Societies seat, defeating his rivals M. Meenakshi (5 votes) and P. Srikantamurthy (3 votes).

The incumbent MCDCC Bank President S. Chandrashekar lost to former ZP Vice-President H. Subbaiah from District Co-operative Societies seat, while Subbaiah secured 21 votes, S. Chandrashekar managed just 12 votes, thus losing by 9 votes.

K.S. Kumar scored a resounding victory from Mysuru District Taluks Co-operative Societies seat (barring Nanjangud taluk) defeating his rival A.T. Somashekar. S.M. Kempanna (35 votes) was declared elected from Chamarajanagar District Taluk Societies (and also Nanjangud taluk of Mysuru district) seat defeating his rival K.M. Madappa (17 votes).

Out of the 17 Directors, barring Hanur MLA R. Narendra and Y.M. Jayaram from Yelandur, all the 15 other newly elected Directors belong to the camp led by youth JD(S) leader G.D. Harish Gowda.

Why let religion destroy India?

Point of VIEW

T.J.S. George

There are no humans in India any longer, only Hindus, Muslims, Christians and Dalits. We have turned religion, meant to be a positive force, into a destructive idea. We spread hatred, attack others, lynch people in the name of God...

What's happening to our country? A huge and diverse land of 135 million people, 29 states and 22 scheduled languages, yet we are caught in a single obsession — religion. All discussions, all decisions, all policies are shaped by religion. Sabarimala is on the edge of civil war. "Hindus are losing their patience," a Union Minister tells the Supreme Court after it postponed the Ayodhya case hearing. Uttar Pradesh changes Allahabad into Prayagraj. Soon Azamgarh will be Aryamgarh, Aligarh will be Harigarh, Muzaffarnagar will be Laxminagar and Ahmedabad will be Karnavati. Will they become model cities as a result, all civic problems solved?

It's not that we don't have real issues bothering us. In fact we are immersed in issues that threaten us from multiple sides. The Reserve Bank is fighting the Finance Ministry. CBI, of all things, is sabotaging CBI. Breathing in the National capital has become more injurious to health than smoking. More and more youngsters are ending up jobless. Education has become a scandal. Not one Indian University is among the world's top 100. Indians are committing unbelievable crimes, like raping a 100-year-old woman. Our food has largely become unfit for human consumption. No party talks about these subjects. Religion alone counts.

Food, the everyday food we eat, has become a threat. Chemical farming is so widespread that hardly any vegetable escapes residual dangers. Pesticides that are banned globally are used in India. Even endosulfan was supported by Ministers like Sharad Pawar despite the horrible deformations it caused in a generation of people. The "American way of farming" was introduced in Punjab in 1960s to usher in the Green Revolution. The result was the Cancer Train that left the farmers' town of Bathinda every night for Bikaner where treatment was more affordable. Overuse of pesticides turned the Green Revolution into a nightmare.

Did politicians do anything? Did people learn anything? Today farmers in several parts of Tamil Nadu use excessive pesticides on crops meant to go to neighbouring states and less on portions meant for local consumption — a version of parochial patriotism. Fish is preserved in chemicals used to keep human corpses from decaying too fast. According to UN reports, India ranks among the top countries whose agri-food products are rejected in the US and European Union. Indian exports are sent back because of the presence of microtoxins, microbial contamination, veterinary drug residue, heavy metals, unauthorised food additives, pesticides remnants and wrong product composition.

If our best is so often rejected by advanced countries, what would be the state of the food we keep for our own consumption? No wonder advanced countries export their worst to India. In 2008 as many as 35 large containers of hazardous American waste were found rotting in Tuticorin port for three years. Who allowed it to come there? Who kept it unattended for so long? How many made how much?

In 2003 Parliament went to the extent of banning Coca Cola and Pepsi from its canteens because of too much toxic pesticides. But there was no ban outside Parliament. That means, what was bad for MPs was okay for ordinary folks. MPs themselves lifted the ban after a while. The Coca Cola factory in Plachimada was closed because the waste fluids from it made neighbouring areas unfit for agriculture. But other factories in other cities continued. Before the power of lobbies, our policy makers bend their knees.

Colouring agents, among the most dangerous chemicals that go into food, are allowed free play. A look at Diwali halwas will show how colouring can even look unhealthy. Everybody knows that adulterants are used widely — saw dust (in chilli powder), coal tar (in tea), dyes (in turmeric, green chillies, apples). Most colour enhancing dyes are highly carcinogenic. In responsibly governed countries these problems are contained. In Singapore, Kuala Lumpur and Bangkok, the authorities ensure that street food is not only clean but good enough to be a tourist attraction.

If others can do these things, why can't we? Because we are obsessed with religion and its politics. Nothing else matters. In Madhya Pradesh five sadhus were appointed ministers of state. Union Minister Giriraj Singh warned Muslims of "consequences" if they did not support Ram Mandir. As the distinguished novelist Mukundan said: There are no humans in India any longer, only Hindus, Muslims, Christians and Dalits. We have turned religion, meant to be a positive force, into a destructive idea. We spread hatred, attack others, lynch people in the name of God. No God will forgive us.

The four-and-a-half-hour play to be staged everyday till Nov.18

Mysuru, Nov.13- The State Government has announced a three-day mourning following the passing away of Union Minister of Chemicals and Fertilisers and Parliamentary Affairs Ananth Kumar on Nov.12 and hence, 'Sri Ramayana Darshanam' that was to be staged from Nov.14 to 18 at Bhoomigeeta in Rangayana premises, will now be staged from Nov.15.

In a press release, Rangayana Director Bhagirathi Bai Kadam has stated that the play which was to be staged for five days from Nov.14 to 18 has now been reduced to four days and it will be staged from Nov.15 to 18 from 6 pm on all the days.

Those who have purchased tickets for the Nov.14 show can preserve the tickets for Nov.15 show. However, they have been asked to exchange the tickets for change of seat numbers at the Rangayana office, she said.

"It is difficult to add more seats in the theatre as the play is four-and-a-half hours long and more people cannot be accommodated," she said.

Speaking to Star of Mysore here this morning, she said that since the play is reduced to four days, they would stage the play in Bengaluru on Nov.23 and 24, return to Mysuru and stage a few more shows, the dates for which will be announced later.

The play marks the 50th anniversary of Jnanpith Award to poet laureate Kuvempu for his epic 'Sri Ramayana Darshanam.'

City's theatre repertory Rangayana, in association with Kannada and Culture Department, will stage the adapted play of 'Sri Ramayana Darshanam.'

ADVANCE BOOKING

The entry ticket is priced at Rs.50 per head. The tickets can be reserved in advance at Rangayana office between 10.30 am and 5.30 pm on all the days.

The tickets will be reserved based on first-cum-first-serve basis, until the tickets last.

The tickets can be booked online through payumoney.

Bhoomigeeta where the play is going to be staged can accommodate 210 people.

The audience should reach the venue half-an-hour in advance and the tickets will be on first-cum-first serve basis.

The online ticket booking will stop two hours before the commencement of the play and the back three rows are reserved for online ticket holders. There will be no seat numbers for online ticket buyers and they have to show the message on the mobile phones and get the tickets.

Rangayana Director too to perform

Poet laureate K.V. Puttappa (Kuvempu) has revisited 'Sri Ramayana Darshanam' with a modern outlook and penned the epic, where he uses both old Kannada (Hale Kannada) and new Kannada (Hosa Kannada), which is a unique style he has adapted. The readers will be transported to a different world both while reading and listening to the epic poem.

"It was a challenge to present this epic poem on stage and we decided to take it up as Kannada and Culture Director N.R. Vishu Kumar was very keen to see that the play is staged during the 50th Anniversary of Jnanpith award to Kuvempu," said Bhagirathi Bai Kadam.

In all, there are 82 people involved in making of the play which includes backstage artistes like costumes, property and other paraphernalia. Out of this, 42 actors will be on stage performing the play.

Asked if all of them were from Rangayana itself, Bhagirathi Bai said, "We have selected 30 artistes from different parts of the State and they will be performing with 12 senior actors from Rangayana. I myself will also be donning the roles and that means there are 13 senior actors."

The artistes are rehearsing for the play from last three months. Bhagirathi Bai will don double costumes, which means she will exchange roles with other artistes on different days.

Though officials made all efforts to convince Musheer Ahmed to come down, he refused to budge resisting the operation.

Meanwhile, tension prevailed in the area as hundreds of residents from Rajivnagar and surrounding areas gathered at the spot. Sensing trouble, the officials returned empty-handed without demolishing the building.

Those in the team included MUDA Secretary M.K. Savitha, Executive Engineers Prabhakar and Suvarna, Special Land Acquisition Officer Chandramma, MUDA Assistant Executive Engineer Mohan and MUDA Superintending Engineer B.K. Suresh Babu.

Some among the crowd were heard criticising the absence of topmost officials like MUDA Commissioner P.S. Kantharaj, MCC Commissioner K.H. Jagadeesha and senior Police officers at the spot while carrying out such a demolition drive.

Later, the owners of the building are said to have moved the Court to get a stay against the demolition of the partially built Shaadi Mahal.

'Care needed while reporting on adolescence issues'

UNICEF, Mysore Varsity hold workshop on 'Development Reporting'

UNICEF Field Office for Andhra Pradesh, Karnataka and Telangana Chief Meital Rusdia and UoM Registrar Prof. R. Rajanna lighting the lamp during the inauguration of workshop on 'Development Reporting' at Vijnana Bhavan in Manasagangothri recently as UNICEF Communication Expert Prasoon Sen & Dept. of Journalism and Mass Communication Asst. Professor Dr. M.S. Sapna look on.

Mysuru, Nov.13 (RKB&NNN)- The opinion that sharply came into focus at the 'Development Reporting' workshop was how the media has been ignoring the many problems and issues regarding adolescence behaviour.

Nearly 30 to 35 journalists from districts of Mysuru, Mandya, Kodagu, Hassan and Journalism students participated in the workshop on 'Development Reporting - Regarding adolescence,' jointly organised by UNICEF (United Nations Children Emergency Fund) and Department of Journalism and Mass Communication, University of Mysore (UoM), at Vijnana Bhavan in Manasagangothri recently.

The workshop highlighted how news reports, analysis, interviews and feature reporting should be done while writing about adolescence issues.

"One should be extremely careful while reporting on adolescents. There should not be any reporting that would push adolescents to crime, their photos should not be published and opinions on them should be avoided," said Child Rights Trust Executive Director Vasudev Sharma.

"The problems of adolescent girls should be viewed very seriously and delicately. Such girls are facing problems of child marriage, toilet issues, human trafficking, anaemia, sexual exploitation and many other problems. The other issues include LGBTQ, migration, orphaned children and all these must be kept in mind while reporting," he said.

Challenges of adolescent protection: UNICEF Field Office for Andhra Pradesh, Karnataka and Telangana Chief Meital Rusdia said that giving protection to adolescents in India has remained a challenge. There should be more positive reporting on them, she added.

UNICEF is concentrating more on children's development and empowerment and it has chalked out several programmes in this direction. The primary aim should be the protection of child rights, she said. UoM Registrar Prof. R. Rajanna inaugurated the workshop.

Resource person journalist Preeti Nagaraj, UNICEF Communication Expert Prasoon Sen & Dept. of Journalism and Mass Communication Asst. Professor Dr. M.S. Sapna were present.

> "Today's media is ignoring the problems, challenges and other issues faced by the adolescents. On the contrary, they are only concentrating on crime about them during prime time on television and on front pages in newspapers. Hence, we are trying to sensitise the journalists by gathering them at one place about how to report on the other equally important issues of adolescents. We are also trying to involve the media more by chalking out several programmes for them to report in an unbiased way.

#MeToo discussed in workshop

On the #MeToo movement it is generally asked why no complaint was filed by women then? Why they did not expose it then? However, during adolescence there is a lot of pressure on the young minds. They will not know whom to go to while they are being sexually exploited or where to file a complaint. The main reason is fear and confusion and hence, they keep quiet. But once they grow up, they will have overcome that fear. Also now they have a platform to raise the issue. Hence, women are discussing about #MeToo.

Sculptor: Elizabeth Bradford Holebrook in 1996.

The first desire of any visitor to Canada is to see the World's wonder Niagara Falls which we also did. No description satisfies its glory.

Twenty minutes away from the great booming of Niagara Falls nestled here a historic and heritage tiny town called Niagara-on-Lake which has become famous for the Theatre lovers from overseas because of annual Shaw Festival held there April to Oct. staging mainly Shaw's plays. They are so popular one has to book tickets months in advance. The big 856-seater Festival Theatre was inaugurated in 1973 when Queen Elizabeth, Indira Gandhi and Canadian PM Trudeau who attended and also watched performances. There are two other theatres with 300 seats each which also stage plays.

There are several heritage hotels here to cater mainly for those who camp here for the Festival. This area is also described as Wine Country with large wine yards around.

This Festival is traced to 1962 when one local Lawyer and Playwright Brian Doherty started staging plays for a small audience in the town and now it has grown to the present status.

First Newspaper of Canada

It is interesting that I came across this plaque erected near Niagara-on-Lake which is self explanatory:

First Newspaper 1793

The Upper Canada Gazette or American Oracle, first newspaper in what is now Ontario, was published in the town of Niagara. Its first issue, edited by Louis Roy, appeared April 18, 1793.

On this site was published The Gleaner which from 1817 to 1837 under the editorship of Andrew and Samuel Heren was one of the most prominent newspapers in Upper Canada.

Edited by the Ontario Archaeological and Historic Sites Board.

Cheap Chinese goods choking country's cottage industries

Former Minister C.H. Vijayashankar expresses concern

Devendra Achar, Chinnaswamy Achar, Jagadish, Kavimitra Siddhachar and Rajachar, who were conferred 'Vishwakarma Awards' by Samridhi Trust at Rotary Auditorium on JLB Road in city on Sunday, are seen with former Minister C.H. Vijayashankar and other guests.

Mysuru, Nov.13 (YDS&NNN)- The cheap Chinese goods that are flooding the Indian market is causing huge threat for the cottage industries in the country, said former Minister C.H. Vijayashankar.

He was speaking at the awards ceremony and anniversary function organised by Samridhi Trust at Rotary Auditorium on JLB Road here on Sunday and said that the cottage industries were facing threat to their very existence and if this has to be combated then one has to encourage Indian industries.

"In an agrarian dominated country like India there were more industries based on agriculture and the rural folks were finding jobs in their own villages. However, as time progressed, the cottage industry was taken over by small scale industries, which in turn gave way to medium and large scale industries. In short, almost all industries are in the hold of Multi-National Companies (MNCs). This has resulted in the villagers migrating to towns and cities," he said.

"Earlier, the cities would grow depending on the villages but due to modernisation, the villagers are embracing urban lives. The MNCs are using water, land and other resources of the country and making huge profits. Coca Cola company is earning Rs.6,000 crore a year and WhatsApp is doing a turnover of Rs.21,000 crore. However, people in our country are still finding it difficult to come out of the economic problems," he said, expressing his anxiety.

On the occasion, 'Vishwakarma Awards' were presented to Devendra Achar (wood work), Chinnaswamy Achar (idol carving), Jagadish (wood work), Kavimitra Siddhachar (literature) and Rajachar (gold work).

Vastu expert Satish Chouhan, Dasti Nursing College Chairman Dr. D. Thimmaiah, District Chutuku Sahitya Parishat President Rathna Halappagowda, S.M. Prasad, Trust Founder-President Maliyaru Umesh, Ursu Jagriti Academy President Dr. M.G.R. Urs and others were present.

Mysuru, Nov.13 (RKB&KS)- Continuing his cleanliness drives across his constituency, MLA S.A. Ramdas took up cleaning in the areas coming under MCC Ward No.49 of KR constituency on Sunday besides creating awareness on the importance on cleanliness.

Ramdas, who took up the broom along with Pourakarmikas, volunteers, members of various organisations and the residents, conducted cleaning at Agrahara Circle, Vani Vilas Market, Madhvachar Road, Nanjumalige Circle and surrounding places. He urged the residents to segregate dry and wet waste at their houses itself and place them separately in the bins which would be helpful in keeping the city clean. After seeing the garbage near the shops, Ramdas instructed the MCC Health Officer to issue notices to them.

During his visit to Vani Vilas Market, Ramdas, who saw uncleared vegetable waste there questioned the MCC officials as to why the garbage was not being cleared and instructed them to get the waste cleared immediately and regularly besides asking the officials to collect money from the tenants of the market and take care of cleanliness.

Ramdas said that as the entrance arch to Vani Vilas Market is dilapidated, the gates have been closed resulting in very less people coming to this market. He further said that this problem should be solved immediately and the officials should prepare a list of legal and illegal tenants in the market. A meeting with tenants has been called on Nov.17 in CADA premises to discuss about the development of the market and after tenants decide at the meeting, he would discuss the same with the MCC Commissioner on Nov.19.

WORD OF THE DAY

Mordant

Pronunciation: MOR-dunt
Meaning: Biting and caustic in thought, manner, or style; incisive; burning; pungent.

Origin: The etymology of mordant certainly has some bite to it. That word, which came to modern English through Middle French, ultimately derives from the Latin verb mordēre, which means "to bite." In modern parlance, mordant usually suggests a wit that is used with deadly effectiveness. Mordēre puts the bite into other English terms, too. For instance, that root gave us the tasty morsel ("a tiny bite"). But nibble too many of those and you'll likely be hit by another mordēre derivative: remorse ("guilt for past wrongs"), which comes from Latin remordēre, meaning "to bite again."
Example: Some substance which acts as a mordant and tends to fix the stain to the bacteria.

THE ODD WORD

Ylem

The primordial matter of the universe.

PHRASE OF THE DAY

Mind your own beeswax

Meaning: To mind one's own business, to rudely tell someone not to stick their nose in your private affairs.

Origin: This idiom is the slang rendition of the more commonly used "mind your own business" and has quite an interesting origin. Today, if one walks into any department store or chemist's one would probably be surrounded by a multitude of beauty products promising the most miraculous solutions to any kind of skin condition under the sun. But how did women or men manage to treat their pimples, blemishes or severe acne in the past? Well, the answer is that they would spread a thin layer of bees wax onto their skin to smoothen their facial appearance, and if someone stared at them too long, this would warrant them saying "Mind your own beeswax", which basically meant "stop staring at me."
Example: Harry really needs to learn to mind his own beeswax.
